Who should attend

- Law students and recently graduated lawyers (Foundation level)
- Practising lawyers and in-house counsel (intermediate level)
- Senior lawyers and partners dealing with international clients and transactions (Advanced level)
- Translators and legal staff wishing to master the language of the law

Entry requirements

- A short placement test before enrolment to direct you to the most suitable level (LE 100, LE 101 or LE 102)
- The LE 100 Foundation level requires no prior legal or language experience; the Intermediate and Advanced levels build on the level before them
- An interest in working with English-language texts, contracts and clients in law or translation

What you will learn

- Understand English legal terminology in context and use it accurately
- Read and analyse English legal texts, contracts and judgments
- Legal writing: correspondence, memoranda and contractual clauses
- Professional oral communication in meetings, negotiations and hearings
- Progress through three levels, with a certificate for each level

What the fee includes

- 24 training hours per level over 4 weeks, in interactive in-person or online classes
- Course and training materials for each level (12 integrated units)
- Accredited certificate of completion from Metropolis Training Institute for each level
- Access to the Metropolis learning platform and review of recorded lectures

- Self-study option with the Metropolis AI Tutor around the clock, with recorded instructional videos
- A free placement consultation with one of our academic advisers

Assessment and certificate

- Assessment method: Participants are assessed through a placement test before joining, then practical exercises and written assignments in every unit with immediate correction by the trainer, in addition to meeting the attendance and assessment requirements of each level.
- Certificate: An accredited certificate of completion from Metropolis Training Institute is awarded for each of the three levels.
